

Writing Sense: Your Writing Skills Handbook, Book 6

'Getting Published is hugely knowledgeable and useful; it is full of good sense and will almost certainly become the handbook for training postgraduates in this vital area.'
— Professor Martin Coyle, Cardiff University, UK

Publishing your work is an essential part of academic life, and this comprehensive handbook, based on practical evidence and extensive research, is perfect for leading you through the process. Enlivened with activities and opportunities for reflection, it equips you with the skills to develop successful writing practices and habits that will enable you to write well, complete your work to a high standard and be published. Drawing on her experience as a writer, editor and supervisor, Gina Wisker covers the practicalities of writing and provides well-tested methods for managing time, overcoming writers' block and developing a confident academic voice.

Getting Published:

- Equips you with the skills to explore, develop and express your own ideas.
- Covers multiple forms of academic writing, including research for qualifications, conference papers, journals, books and online publications.
- Makes evidence-based suggestions for professional practice in seeking and gaining publishing outlets, dealing with reviews, getting published and determining impact.
- Is ideal reading for postgraduates, academics, researchers, professionals and anyone wishing to write effectively and share their work with others through academic publication.

Gina Wisker is Head of the Centre for Learning and Teaching at the University of Brighton, UK. She has written extensively about higher education as well as contemporary literature. Her books include The Undergraduate Research Handbook, The Postgraduate Research Handbook and The Good Supervisor. She is editor of the journal Innovations in Education and Teaching International.
