Candidate endpoints give you access to information about the people running for office. This information is organized by candidate_id. If you're unfamiliar with candidate IDs, using /candidates/search will help you locate a particular candidate.

Officially, a candidate is an individual seeking nomination for election to a federal office. People become candidates when they (or agents working on their behalf) raise contributions or make expenditures that exceed $5,000.

The candidate endpoints primarily use data from FEC registration Form 1, for candidate information, and Form 2, for committee information.
